152.0 SSILA BUSINESS

Website to move (and get repaired)

We are happy to announce that the SSILA website will soon be moving to a server at the University at Buffalo, SUNY. As many frustrated users of the site know, the Directory and other databases have not been working for several months, due to a software problem, and our current domain host has offered little or no technical support. We expect that the move to Buffalo will allow us to solve the database problem quickly.

The domain address (www.ssila.org) will remain unchanged, although some bookmarks may have to be renewed.

Credit card payment

We are also working on setting up a system for credit card payment of membership dues. Members residing outside the US and Canada have had increasing difficulty in paying by check or money order, and we hope that allowing for credit card payment will alleviate this problem. We anticipate that arrangements will be complete in a few weeks.

152.1 CORRESPONDENCE

Articles on small languages and communities

From dorian (ndorian@gwi.net) 29 Nov 2001:

As readers of the SSILA Bulletin may know, the *International Journal of the Sociology of Language* regularly publishes a special section (which I edit) entitled "Small Languages and Small Language Communities." Some SLSLC sections are coming up that may be of particular interest to SSILA. These include the last one for the current year (SLSLC 36), "Culture and Language Revitalization, Maintenance, and Development in Mexico: The Nahua and Alto Balsas communities," by Jose Antonio Farfan; and the first one for next year (SLSLC 37), "A Collaborative Model for Preparing Indigenous Curators of a Heritage Language," by N. Louanna Furbee and Lori A. Stanley. SLSLC 34, which is already out as the first one of this present year, was "Using the Telephone as a Community Language Center," by Alice Taff.

--Nancy Dorian Harpswell, Maine

A year ago I did some research in the area of Siberian indigenous languages and the history of policies towards them in Russia -- with a bit of comparative perspective on Canada, Australia, and the USA -- which I compiled in a policy-research paper of sorts that is now in the process of publication. The text is at:

http://www.owlnet.rice.edu/~andreif/project.html

(follow the link on top to "Policy Paper").

Suggestions and opinions would be very welcome and thoroughly appreciated.

152.2 RICE TO BE NEW EDITOR OF IJAL

From Robert Shirrell (rshirrell@press.uchicago.edu) 28 Nov 2001:

The University of Chicago Press is pleased to announce the appointment of Professor Keren Rice, of the University of Toronto, as the next editor of the International Journal of American Linguistics. Professor Rice's five-year term will begin with the 2003 volume of the journal, and she will take up work in the summer of next year. In the next few months we will announce details of the transition from Professor David Rood, to whom the Press is very grateful for more than twenty years of service to the journal.

152.3 POSITIONS OPEN

* Native American anthropology at U of New Mexico

To fill the faculty position held by Professor Alfonso Ortiz from 1974 until his 1997 death, the Department of Anthropology of the University of New Mexico seeks a scholar, doctorate in hand, at tenure-track Assistant or Associate level, with training in one or more of the Department's four subfields (Archaeology, Biological Anthropology, Ethnology/Linguistic Anthropology, Human Evolutionary Ecology) and with possible training/interests in one or more allied fields such as law, medicine, art, education, history, political science, etc. Ideally, the candidate will have conducted or be engaged in original research with one or more Native American groups ("urban" or otherwise). The successful candidate must have record of publication and teaching experience, depending on level of appointment. The candidate will be expected to teach courses in her/his subfield/areas of interest, ideally including Native American topics, at both undergraduate and graduate levels. S/he will be expected to develop productive relationships with Native American groups on the UNM campus and Indian communities elsewhere in the region.

Preference will be given to candidates based on the following:

Qualified Native American
Strength of preparation and promise of scholarship
Ability to teach undergraduate courses and graduate seminars
Ability to advise and direct graduate work
Ability to work cordially and cooperatively with others
Participate in an environment comprising significant cultural diversity

As permitted by Title VII, preference will be given to qualified Native American candidates. Signed letter of purpose, names of three references, vita to Sylvia Rodriguez, Search Committee, Department of Anthropology, UNM, Albuquerque, NM 87131. Applications must be postmarked by December 10, 2001. The University of New Mexico is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer and educator.

We at UCLA are looking for someone who can teach one or two upper division courses in linguistic anthropology for the winter and spring quarter. The winter courses currently scheduled are: "Language and Identity" and a topics course to be agreed upon (at the moment, the scheduled course is "Verbal Art, Ethnopoetics, and Oral Literature"). We are looking for someone who is an excellent lecturer and has done original research in areas such as language contact, multilingualism, language socialization, language ideology, verbal art, narrative analysis, non-verbal communication.

If you are interested or you know of someone who might be appropriate for the appointment, please contact me. Until Sunday 12/1, I will be at the AAA meetings, at the Marriott in Washington, DC.
